A review of theories of mechanisms of induced seismicity ...

A review of theories of mechanisms of induced seismicity. In: W. G. Milne (Editor), Induced Seismicity. Eng. Geol., 10(2-4): 85-98. Theories of the physical processes leading to the stimulation of seismic activity by underground explosions, fluid injection, and reservoir impoundment are summarized. In all cases, the materials must be pre-stressed to a substantial fraction of their breaking

Mechanisms of Acetaminophen-Induced Liver Necrosis
DNA fragmentation is another mechanism that has been implicated in acetaminophen-induced hepatotoxicity (Salas and Coreoran 1997). Genomic DNA fragmentation in liver (TUNEL assay and DNA laddering) following hepatotoxic doses of acetaminophen in the mouse was originally reported by Coreoran's laboratory (Ray et al. 1990, 1993).

Induced seismicity of the Groningen gas field: History and recent developments. Abstract Induced seismicity of the Groningen gas field is caused by the production of gas. Because of the large areal extent of the reservoir, the long history of depletion, and the available data sets (which exist as a result of consequences and public unrest caused by induced seismicity), the field presents a Statistical investigation of reservoir-induced seismicity
