Value Creation in Mergers and Acquisitions | ISBInsight

While mergers and acquisitions are a very important tool in a CEO's strategic toolkit, value creation in mergers and acquisitions (M&A) remains a mirage. Firms invariably tout synergies as the reason compelling them to seek this medium of inorganic growth. Synergy implies that the whole is greater than the sum of parts. In other words, a merger or an acquisition makes sense only if it leads to certain operational and/or financial advantages that the individual entities could not

Taking a longer-term look at M&A value creation | McKinsey

Measuring the value that mergers and acquisitions create is an inexact science. Typical analyses compare share prices before and after a deal is announced, using short-term investor reactions to indicate how much value it would be likely to create. One benefit of this approach is that it provides a measure of expected value unaffected by other variables, such as subsequent acquisitions or
